National Association of City and County Health Officials (NACCHO)

NACCHO's members are the 2800 local health departments across the United States. Gunnison County HHS is a member local health department. NACCHO's vision is health, equity, and security for all people in their communities through public health policies and services. NACCHO's mission is to be a leader, partner, catalyst, and voice for local health departments in order to ensure the conditions that promote health and equity, combat disease, and improve the quality and length of all lives.

Annual Meeting

NACCHO is the only national organization that hosts annual conferences that specifically address the needs and concerns of local health officials. This year's conference theme is Envisioning the Future: Creating Our Path. NACCHO Annual 2015 will provide an interactive setting for local health officials and their public health partners from around the country to examine strategies, share ideas, and plan actions for sustaining or reinventing their organizations in the new era.

Justification:

Every year, local health department professionals gather at the NACCHO Annual conference to share opportunities, challenges, best practices, and success stories; engage with federal and local partners; and gain insights from public health experts. The 2015 NACCHO Annual Conference will help local health officials envision the future of local public health in their communities and provide them with the essential skills and strategies to achieve that vision effectively and efficiently. In just a few days, attendees will learn from the experiences of colleagues and experts and adapt the knowledge into practice back at their organizations. Rapid change and reduced resources bring a sense of urgency for improved management practices, cultivation of non-traditional partnerships and collaborations, comprehensive analysis of the delivery of services and programs, and technological tools that expedite planning, programming, and monitoring. With an increased need for local public health departments to address both new and traditional public health roles and functions while demonstrating accountability and transparency, local health officials' jobs are more challenging than ever before. Leaders and their staff must have the latest evidence and tools available to be able to influence real change in their communities. What is NACCHO Annual? • NACCHO Annual is the largest gathering of local health department leaders and other public health professionals in the United States. With an average of a thousand attendees, NACCHO Annual is big enough to be powerful and small enough to be personal. • NACCHO Annual is the premier opportunity for local health officials to connect with and learn from their peers across the country. • NACCHO Annual offers hands-on experience and innovative solutions to the challenges that local health departments face. Local Health Department Officials, Directors, and Leaders This year's education sessions are organized into eight tracks that reflect the essential functions that all local health department perform: • Assess & Investigate • Inform & Educate • Community Engagement • Policies • Plans & Public Health Laws • Access to Care • Performance Management & Quality Improvement • Evidence-Based Practices • Administration, Management, Governance, & Workforce
